

Poetry.

The following touching stanzas are from the pen of Wolfe, author of the burial of Sir John Moore. They were written soon after the death of a beloved wife:

If I had thought thou couldst have died,
I might not weep for thee;
But I forgot when by thy side,
That thou couldst not be so;
I never through my mind had past,
The time would e'er be o'er,
That I on thee should look my last,
And thou shouldst smile no more!

And still upon that face I look,
And think thy smile again;
And still the thought I cannot brook
That I must look in vain:
But when I speak, thou dost not say
What thou ne'er left'st unsaid;
And then I feel, as well I may,
Dear Mary! thou art dead:

If thou couldst stay, e'en as thou art,
All cold and all serene,
I still might press thy silent heart,
And where thy smiles have been;
While e'en thy still, bleak core I have,
Thou seemest still mine own;
But as I lay thee in the grave,
I feel I am alone!

I do not think, where'er thou art,
Thou hast forgotten me;
And I, perhaps, may soothe this heart
In thinking, too, of thee;
Yet there was round thee such a dawn
Of light ne'er seen before,
As fancy never could have drawn,
And never can restore!

RISE EARLY IN THE MORN.
Would you behold the loveliest sight,
That ever man beheld,
More lovely than the gems of night,
When clouds are all dispelled?
Yes, would you view the rising sun
The earth and sky adorn,
And see his journey just begun?
"Rise early in the morn."

Would you behold the joyous earth,
All dripping bright with dew,
As fresh and glad as when its birth
Hailed the Almighty's view?
Would you inhale the odors sweet,
On morning zephyrs borne,
Or taste wild Nature's purest treat?
"Rise early in the morn."

Would you, like you proud forest tree,
Be healthy strong and great,
And feel your heart beat strong and free,
Your spirits all elate;
In short—oh! would you be a man,
And not of men the scorn?
Adopt this simple, surest plan—
"Rise early in the morn."

Miscellaneous.

Lecture to Bachelors.
The editor of the Evansville Journal retired from his editorial sanctum a short time since on a visit to another State, and while absent took unto himself a charming wife. On his return home, and in resuming the conduct of his paper, he thus discourses:

In announcing the fact of my return home with a rib, we cannot refrain from expressing our profound disgust of bachelorism and bachelors—and we expect to be disgusted with both for several weeks. We are well aware that in times gone by we occasionally made ourselves ridiculous in the eyes of sensible men by upholding the bachelor state as the only life of happiness, independence and earthly glory. But we were young and green then, and of course knew but one side of the subject. Now stand up here, you "consarned" ugly "picters" of humanity rejoicing in the names of bachelors, and answer us a few questions.

What are you fit for in this world? What good are you doing your country? What are you doing for posterity? What interest have you in the "generations yet unborn," you read of? Where will you be when old men, if your life habits ever permit you to arrive at a good age? Won't you be like lonely, scared and scathed trees standing in a big clearing without a companion, and your life unprotected from the frosts by young saplings and shrubs at your feet? Or won't you be like pumpkins in a corn field, more prominent because of your prodigious ugliness and loneliness, than the stalks at your side laden with golden grain? Hold your heads up and talk like men, whether you can act so or not? Now, don't you feel ashamed of yourselves? Look at the girls about you, all smiles and sugar—hearts overflowing with love ready to be spilled on the first good fellow that can touch their sympathies—feeling rich as cream, worked by a kindred spirit can soon be worked into butter, and spread over your life till you are happy as the birds of spring. Look at 'em, and feel the disgusted position which you occupy in the cabbage garden of humanity. What are you holding back for? Now just reform—put on your best looks and your other coat, visit the girls, ice cream them, talk to them prettily, drive them, walk them, please them—then propose, get accepted, marry, and the country will rely on you as a faithful and well disposed citizen.

DECEIVING CHILDREN.—Dr. B. was called to visit a sick boy twelve years of age. As he entered the house, the mother took him aside, and told him she could not get her boy to take any medicine unless she deceived him.

"Well, then," said Dr. B., "I shall not give him any. He is old enough to be reasoned with."

He went to the boy, and after examination said to him, my little man, you are very sick and you must take some medicine. It will taste badly and make you feel badly for a while, and then I expect it will make you feel better."

The doctor prepared the medicine, and the boy took it like a man, without the least resistance; and said he would take from his mother any thing that the physician had prescribed; but he would take nothing else from her. She had so often deceived him, and told him "it was good when she gave him medicines, and he would not trust to any thing she said." But he saw at once that Dr. B. was telling him the truth, and trusted him; he knew when he took the bitter draught, just what to expect.

This simple incident contains instruction of deep and solemn importance, deserving the careful consideration of every parent. "Honesty," with children as well as with others and in all circumstances, "is the best policy."—Visitor.

CUTTINGS.—Now is the time to put in cuttings; almost every tree or shrub will grow from a cutting, if proper care and attention be given them. We have grown pears, apples, peaches and cherries from cuttings, and nearly every variety of flowering bush grow from cuttings planted in October. The soil for cuttings should be mellow and rich, rich in vegetable matter, and as cool as possible. The great advantage of October planting is in the roots forming in the fall and winter, thereby giving the plant a vigorous start in the spring, enabling it to brave the heat of the summer. Cuttings should be placed in the ground horizontally, with but two buds above the surface, and the butt end of the cutting should always rest against the solid earth; the roots are surer to radiate from the base, and once having taken hold, will be likely to live. Lovers of fruits and flowers, try cuttings in October. —Soil of the South.

OLD IRA'S PRAYER.—The Elmira Daily Karlon, under the head of remarkable prayers, publishes the following of an old negro, well known in and about Suffolk, Mass., by the name of "Ira." The old fellow was frequently employed in playing the violin for dances in and about the town, and when returning one dark stormy night from a country "frolic," his boat in crossing the river became nearly swamped, and in his struggle to right her he lost both oars, and as last expedient he determined to do a thing which he had never attempted before, which was to pray, and dropping on his knees, he exclaimed—"Oh! mass Lord God! if evah ye gwine to help ole Ira, now is de time!"

JEFFERSON'S TEN PRACTICAL RULES OF LIFE.—1. Never put off till to-morrow what can be done to-day.
2. Never trouble others to do what you can do yourself.
3. Never spend money before you have it.

4. Never buy what you do not want, because it is cheap.
5. Pride costs as much as hunger, thirst, and cold.
6. We never repent of eating too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain those evils cost that never happen.
9. Take these things by their smooth handle.
10. When angry, always count ten before you speak.

THE HEIGHT OF IMPUDENCE.—A young spark who boarded at one of our principal hotels, managed for a long time by one artifice or another, to postpone the payment of his bill. At last the landlord became quite impatient, and stepping up to his juvenile boarder, slapped him gently on the shoulder, and asked him for some money. "I have not a red cent about me at present," was the laconic reply. "But, my dear sir," said the landlord, "I cannot afford to keep a boarding house without being paid." "Well, d—n it," exclaimed our young philosopher, "if you cannot afford it, sell out to some one that can."—San Francisco Paper.

"SEE THEN WHO'LL BE INVITED."—It is the custom, as we learn from an esteemed friend, in all parts of Scotland, to send invitations, when a death occurs in a family, to all the neighbors to attend the funeral. On one occasion, a neighbor was omitted by the bereaved family, in the usual invitation, a feud having arisen between them. On the day of the funeral, while the people were assembling, the slighted "auld wife" stood in her door and watched the gathering. At length, unable to bear up under her bereavement any longer, she exclaimed—
"Aweel! aweel! we'll hae a corpse o' our ain house some day!—see then who'll be invited!"

A LADY one night at party was much annoyed by the impertinent remarks of a coxcomb who sat near her; at length becoming tired and vexed, she turned to him with an angry countenance, and said:
"Be pleased sir, to cease your unbecoming impertinence."
The fellow was astonished at so sudden a rebuke, and could only reply:
"Pray, Miss do not eat me."
"Be in no fear," she replied, "I am a Jewess!"

A MARRIED gentleman, every time he met the father of his wife, complained to him of the ugly temper and disposition of his daughter. At last upon one occasion, the old gentleman, becoming weary of the grumbings of his son-in-law, exclaimed—"You are right, she is an impudent jade, and if I hear any more complaints of her, I will disinherit her." The husband made no more complaints.

"ARE sister Sal and Nance resources pa?"
"No, my son. Why do you ask that question?"
"Because I heard uncle Josh say if you would only husband your resources, that you'd get along a great deal better than you do, that's all, pa."

JEMINA, my dear, ain't there something the matter with our child. I fear that all ain't right with the poor dear thing. Do see, my dear."
